Ms. World Elite gives accidental peep show while shooting an ad

She was hard to miss.

Ms. World Elite Lidia Szczepanowski broke up the day for a few Midtown office workers, who got a glimpse of her “nude except for her crown and stilettos” during a photo shoot promoting Dr. Kenneth Mark’s skin care line.

“She was caught in the buff by several floors of whistling and catcalling men,” said an on-set source, who says the cheering section consisted of a few 9-to-5ers at an adjacent office building on W. 47th St.

Lucky for those gawkers, things didn’t get litigious.

Szczepanowski, a Huntington, L.I., native, whose list of titles includes Mrs. Corporate America, Mrs. New York America, and Mrs. New York International, is also an attorney.

“She thought she was alone when she ducked behind a wall on the open rooftop to slip into her barely there two-piece,” we’re told. Our source says the brainy blond bombshell gamely waved and smiled while covering up her lady parts.

Though her title is Ms. World Elite, that’s a technicality. Szczepanowski is married and has three kids on Long Island.

The St. John's grad has been practicing law for 20 years and is described as a “no-nonsense and approachable” attorney on the bio page of her Bohemia firm’s site.

It’ll be interesting to see if she bares all about this incident Wednesday night when her “Everything Lidia Radio Show” airs during drive time on Long Island’s WGBB 1240 AM.

This isn’t the first time a sunbathing beauty has been lured into a false sense of security at the scenic Haven Rooftop, which sits on the Sanctuary Hotel near Times Square in the shadow of St. Mary the Virgin Church’s towering steeple.

The Sanctuary ought to consider installing a dressing room on the roof.

We’re told that in 2013, Maxim model Carissa Rosario was spotted by leering office workers while sunbathing atop the Midtown inn, which had closed off the rooftop for her private use.
