8 Rooftop Brunches You Need to Experience Before Summer Ends

By Cait Rohan | August 1, 2016 | Food & Drink

With limited time left for summer, you feel obligated to spend every second outside since fall's crisper temperatures will set in before you know it. But "heat domes" and hot, humid weather can drive even the biggest warm-weather enthusiasts to seek respite in the great indoors and its cold A.C. The solution? Enjoy an alfresco brunch where it's breezier—on one of NYC's toniest rooftops.

Haven Rooftop

Experience Times Square high above the actual hubbub at Haven Rooftop at the Sanctuary Hotel. The bar/resto offers a $29 Sunday brunch prix-fixe menu with the option to add unlimited booze for another $20. And with offerings that run the gamut from a tuna tartare tower and a lobster roll to a brunch pizza and various omelets, you'll want to spend as much time here as possible. Brunch runs on Sundays from 12-3 p.m. 132 W. 47th St., 212-466-9000
